

How, exactly,
does a
Harmony Chip Work?

<http://www.hu.chip.getinharmony.com>

I know, from personal experience, just how difficult it can be to grasp exactly how the Harmony Chip works.

When I began to try to grasp it, I had the additional problem that Joachim (the inventor) used to speak in such rarified technical terms that I (mostly) didn't understand him.

Over our time together we have learned much from each other and his presentation is now simple and easy to understand insofar as one can. We are still searching for the "magic formula" by which everyone can instantly comprehend what the Harmony Chip actually does.

I've had to learn the hard way so I can, maybe, make it easier for others.

It all has to do with system structures and their integrity.

A human being is an extremely complex multi-system, system. The energy which constantly creates and powers all the systems is, in itself, totally neutral. Only when energy participates in a system does it gain a purpose and function.

Human beings are not the only systems in their vicinity, however. There's also electro-smog, destructive emotions, noise pollution, radioactivity, etc., etc., etc.. On the other hand there are life-enhancing external influences. Sunlight, good music, etc., etc..

All of these also influence the way in which each human being, from moment to moment, is and becomes.

Now, a human system system is each time totally unique. This is why there can be no universal solution to problems by adding something to the system (medicine, for example). Each system, however, "knows" exactly what it should do; this is what system actually means. If the energy which it takes up to create and to sustain itself were in a neutral condition, then the system would automatically function perfectly (there would be no other option available).

It's just like a drink of water. If it's pure, fresh, spring water then you feel refreshed. If it's pumped-up underground water to which carbon dioxide gas has been added as a disinfectant and then stored in cheap plastic, drinking it will not only leave you still thirsty, it may even make you feel rather ill.

The second sort of drink is still more than 99% H<sub>2</sub>O but so many foreign elements have been added that the human body can almost neither identify it as water nor use it as such.

This is the portrayal of the problem which every human being at this time has, in a picture which is easy to grasp.

Now, the energy which the human systems take up from the immediate environment is very seldom pure. Lots and lots of disturbances and foreign influences are taken up as well.

The human system has to somehow cope with this foreign material. Sometimes it can easily discharge the foreign matter, sometimes it can't and then the system becomes "ill".

Exactly what the Harmony Chip does is to participate, in a passive way, in the inflow of energy to each system. Here, the energy will be sorted into it's various constituents, rather like the individual notes in a musical score. This enables the system being "protected" by the Harmony Chip to take up only those elements it actually wants and to simply leave the parts it can't use lying.

It's just like a water filter: The filter doesn't change the water in any way, it simply separates the H<sub>2</sub>O from the lime, chlorine, antibiotics and all other substances which the human body cannot use or would damage it. You then drink the water and leave the rest where it is, i.e. outside yourself where it can't do you any harm.

By ordering the energy structures at the point of entry to the human, i.e. the skin, the useless and destructive impurities are simply left to one side and, therefore, have no effect upon you.

This has also a knock-on effect.

As the quality of the energy creating and powering the human systems becomes purer and purer so the systems themselves become clearer and more powerful. This, usually, over time, enables the human system to discharge the stored impurities which were making it "ill" or stupid, or old or infertile etc., etc..

So how can one small Harmony Chip detoxify the entire human systems?

It doesn't, is the answer!

Just like drinking one glass of filtered water doesn't purify all the water in your body but, as you drink more and more of it, your blood quality gets better and better and begins to transport both nutrients to your cells and waste products to your kidneys better and, over time, you become clearer and healthier.

So it is with the Harmony Chip. As the purity of the energy forming and powering all your systems rises, so all your systems begin to function better and better and, themselves, eject toxins in the natural way. This constant process brings constant improvements in the quality of life to all users of Harmony Chips.

This is why you feel better.

Karma Singh

25th of October 2005

karma@harmonyunited.com