(Answer to Mike Adams of Natural News)

Hi Mike,

I know you've been getting some heat lately from people whose brains have been so compartmentally indoctrinated that they just can't see that the health of humanity is not just confined to curing physical maladies. You're in the same boat as I with this; many just don't see, until you explain it in "words of one syllable", that drinking financial poison is just as deadly as drinking cyanide.

A true healer, as you know and show, is, primarily, a teacher. Our task is to bring people to recognise that the only person who can solve their problems is him/herself. They are THEIR problems which they have chosen as part of their own personal growth process. Denying this (as many do) is not likely to bring about any sort of solution.

The problem which humanity is now facing is a religious one; religion being a "club" in which all the members have agreed to believe specific dogma. Dogma means, literally, beliefs for which no supporting evidence is offered and it is a crime to question.

The religion which the majority (fortunately, a steadily declining majority) believe is that money is the god which solves all problems and we just need to do what the high priests (the bankers) tell us and god will fill our lives with abundance. The problem is that money has been given the status of a deity and anything that the fiscal "experts" say must be followed "ex cathedra" - followed without thought, without reason and without looking at the consequences.

Money, however, is a creation of humanity, not divinity! If it is to have any use for us at all then only as our servant, never as our master! The present money system was designed, created and perfected to enslave humanity and to compel everyone to follow the whims and dictates of the bankers; ultimately, Rothschild himself - the Anti-Christ in person. The bankers are his lieutenants - the "false prophets" foretold in the Bible (and many other texts) who lead us into Armageddon.

Now, a prophecy is in no way a fixed event. It is a warning! If you continue to follow your present course of action then this will be the result. Change the action and you will attain a different result.

The action which needs to be changed is chasing the dreams and promises offered by others instead of looking to how you can create your own wealth. If the "holy" money which the bankers promise you always loses its value and that with ever increasing speed, what use is it to you? Just look at what they have achieved over the last 40 years: Then, just one member of a family worked and the other looked after the home and children. Now, both parents and any children who are old enough have to work for wages with an ever decreasing purchasing power just to pay the ever increasing bills. Is this a system which is ever likely to bring you luxury wealth or is it one which only works for the bankers?

So, what is the solution? Simply stop using their money! This is much, much simpler than it, at first, appears. There are, in fact, more than three thousand independent currencies owned by the people on this planet. The only value which money has is as a symbolic representation of wealth. If the wealth is not there then you have a fiat currency which constantly loses value. Sound familiar?

Creating local (or even national) currencies based upon real wealth of your community instead of promises of future wealth and making the charging of interest the most serious crime of all - much more heinous than murder because it CAUSES almost all other crime - is a workable way out. Instead of agreeing with your customers and suppliers to use a fiat currency as an exchange medium, work to attain an agreement to use your own currency owned by your community.

I don't know the present state of play in N. America on this but in Germany not only are there more than 60 local currencies and a publicly owned alternative national currency but also at least 40% of all the local community authorities have already created their own local currency and have it "on the shelf" ready to use when the Euro implodes. Are you doing the same?

Blessed be
